ALBANIA AND ITS POSITION IN INTERNATIONAL MARKETS

Moody's International Valuation Agency has published its periodic review for Albania, on the position of our country. Following the latest ranking in the assessment with a "stable" perspective in October this year, the agency reiterates the stable position of Albania in international markets, despite two consecutive shocks, the earthquake and the pandemic. In its latest assessment, it predicts that the economy will begin to recover, from next year where it forecasts a positive growth of 5%. Moody's has recognized the effects of the pandemic on the economy and the inevitable but temporary negative impact on fiscal parameters as well. However, economic conditions in recent years and the joint effort by the authorities to combat the informal economy have yielded the first results in the labor market.
